LTCS 141: ANTI-RACIST SHAKESPEARE
In this course we will examine how anti-racist pedagogy and critical race theory can aid us in reshaping the way we read, study, perform, adapt, and edit Shakespeare’s plays with a justice-oriented lens that can lead us to find new insights with which to build a better world. If you enjoy connecting ideas, learning new languages, playing games, and analyzing a complex text, this is the literature class for you.

Key topics and terms: anti-racist pedagogy, critical race theory, sound studies, animal studies, food studies & game theory!

We will meet during Summer Session 2 TuTH 2:00-4:50PM. Location: CENTR 201. Instructor: Mayra Cortes
